

THE CADDO REPUBLICAN

OCTOBER 2015

EDITOR: LOUIS R. AVALLONE

VOLUME 21, EDITION 10

Raising Voices and Elbows, or Just Raising Awareness, Before We All Go To The Polls?

THIS MONTH'S MEETING

Speakers for this month's luncheon at 12 noon on Tuesday, October 6, 2015 at the Wyndam Garden Hotel (formerly the Clarion Hotel) on E. 70th Street will be the Republican candidates for state and local elections as the Caddo GOP honors these candidates for their willingness to serve and sacrifice. It's our way to say "thanks" before the election, and give each Republican candidate an opportunity to say a few words regarding their campaign in these final days leading up to voting.

"We are grateful to these candidates, and all candidates, indeed, who sacrifice their time, disrupt their personal and professional lives, and commit themselves to making the community a better place, for generations to come," says Caddo Republican PEC Chairman Louis R. Avallone, "and while every candidate may not earn the voters' support, they each deserve, however, our respect."

Most local campaigns have been polite, and likewise, most candidates have not had to raise their voices or their elbows to be heard, or to be seen. There have been countless candidate forums all over the city, and throughout Caddo Parish, for that matter, for nearly all races.

However, "polite" would not be how most people would characterize the race for Caddo Parish Sheriff, where Democrat challenger Eric Hatfield has levied allegations against some in the community from everything involving the destruction of his campaign signs, to his posting that someone had "stalked" his wife, and taken photographs of his property — with the obvious implication that these actions are all politically motivated. Goodness.

So join us Tuesday. Reservations not required. Eating is $13 and listening is free.

FROM THE CHAIRMAN

Dear Fellow Republicans,

The qualifying period for the general election in Louisiana ended last month, and the slate of candidates that will appear on the October 24 ballot this month has been set. However, there's an ocean of difference between the candidates who "qualified" for the election this fall by simply signing-up, and those who are the best candidates for the position because they can solve the problems facing our community – instead of just complaining about them, or stating the obvious with more speeches and empty promises.

Regardless of who is "qualified" or not, our election process works best only when "we the people" must show up. Did you know that only about a third of Louisiana's voters voted in the last gubernatorial election in 2011? It's estimated that only 1 million of Louisiana's 2.8 million registered voters went to the polls. This was the fewest number of voters to cast ballots in a governor's race since 1975.

There's probably a lot of folks out there right now who would just as soon stay at home on election day. In fact, that's what happened in the 2012 presidential election. For Republicans, it is estimated that 3-4 million conservative voters stayed home. They just didn't show up on election day.

And the Democrats, too, have less engaged, fewer motivated members than at any time in their history. As President Obama's former campaign manager described the Democrat Party, "We have a turnout issue."

And perhaps this is why 42% of Americans, on average, are estimated to identify themselves as political independents or "no party". This is the highest percentage of political independents in more than 75 years of public opinion polling.

You see, here's what's going on, and I hope you are sitting down: Our political party system is dying, and sadly, it is perhaps the last, best defense we have in guarding our freedom.

Here's why: The special interests and the media have already virtually replaced the people's interests, for all intents and purposes, because we've allowed them to take the place of our political parties. The special interests and the media, in fact, feel entitled to it now.

But large-scale democracies need an institution, like political parties, to educate the electorate and organize public opinion. Edmund Burke deemed it impossible for legislative bodies to make policy without forming coalitions. In fact, he believed that parties are wholly necessary to the performance of this public duty.

And to the 25% of Louisiana voters registering as "no party", I say this: Whether you feel that your party's leadership in Congress, or in Baton Rouge, has abandoned you, you have not abandoned what you believe, in your heart of hearts. And if you value democracy, it's time to renew our political party system, and take back the power of the people. It can start with you – whether you feel "qualified" or not. Get involved in your Republican party: attend a luncheon, come to a PEC meeting, call any of the numbers on the back of this newsletter and let us know you're ready to renew our democracy...and we'll be ready for you.

In closing, and as always, please consider making a contribution to the Caddo Republican Parish Executive Committee, or to volunteer your time. Contributions of any amount may be made by mailing a check to: Caddo RPEC, 1941-C East 70th Street, Shreveport, LA 71105 or by clicking the following link to contribute by credit or debit card, <http://bit.ly/CaddoRPEC> (but you don't need a Paypal account to contribute online).

Very truly yours,

Louis R. Avallone

CADDO GOP ENDORSES LANDRY

In a press conference at LSUS, the Caddo Republican Party, along with area Republican Party leaders and elected officials, endorsed Jeff Landry for Attorney General. Local elected officials in attendance included State Senator Barrow Peacock and State Representative Alan Seabaugh. In issuing the endorsement of the Webster Parish Republican Party, Chairwoman Jerri Ray DiPingle said, "Jeff Landry is the Republican candidate for Attorney General. We urge conservatives in Northwest Louisiana to vote for Jeff on October 24." In accepting these endorsements, Landry concluded, "I started my campaign in Northwest Louisiana, and I intend to serve this area well as the next Attorney General. Landry has also been endorsed by the Republican Party of Louisiana, the PRO-LIFE Family Research Council, the Gun Owners of America, and Congressman John Fleming.
